

Viral papillomatosis also called "Warts" are a common manifestation of canine papilloma virus in young dogs. This is a particularly graphic example but even this pup's formidable crop of warts will resolve without treatment over a few months! The condition is generally considered harmless however these pups can be contagious to other dogs, especially youngsters.

